

MGH Institute of Allied Health Professions,
Charlestown, MA
with Sasaki Associates, Inc.

Site Feasibility Study, Architectural and Interior Design, Historic Preservation Review

MGH-IHP is a progressive leader in developing comprehensive models for health care education and sought an independent facility where their teaching methods and distinctive combination of academic study, clinical practice and research would thrive in equally innovative physical facilities. In 2001, after an extensive site feasibility study and adaptive reuse study of its present headquarters, the MGH Institute, an academic affiliate of Massachusetts General Hospital, purchased and renovated the 22,000 sf Catherine Filene Shouse Building in the historic Charlestown Navy Yard. Originally built as the joiner's shop in 1866, the Shouse Building underwent a complete interior renovation in 2001, including historic preservation review by SHPO.
